Why Take the Bus?

Imagine trying to conduct business while utilizing city and national bus systems as your only means of transportation. Your business would be limited to the bus schedule and would waste countless human resources trying to coordinate around the bus company’s timetable. This is exactly how relying on the airlines for your business travel needs restricts your company productivity.

The flexibility of corporate air travel is the difference of taking a taxi cab versus riding the bus. With corporate aviation a passenger is flown from and to an airport close to their business needs all while working on their own demanding schedule. By flying to an airport closer to their final destination, passengers are often able to save several days away from the office. Productivity is also increased enroute to the destination in a completely secure work friendly environment. At the destination, ground transportation is easily coordinated to meet the aircraft which allows for minimal time wasted at the airport.

Your company will frequently save money directly by reducing the need for hotel rooms, meals, car rentals, parking and other costs associated with being away from home. Employee’s time is also better managed with less hours or days spent away from their workplace setting.

Your Aircraft is Waiting

Corporate aviation departments are very expensive to operate and equip. Fortunately at Rice Lake Air Center we already have an established flight department with years of experience and aircraft to serve a variety of business missions. Your company can enjoy all of the benefits of corporate aircraft without any overhead costs by employing aircraft from Rice Lake Air Center.

By choosing Rice Lake Air Center you will be certain to get the best corporate aviation experience possible. We encourage our customers to think of Rice Lake Air Center as their own company aviation department. Your company is sure to enjoy the familiarization with our aircraft and flight crews that you would expect with your own flight department. At Rice Lake Air Center we are available to assist with arranging any aspect of your trip right down to the smallest detail.
